the author contends that the focus of pastoral care should be on helping people become themselves what god intended them to become through a deep and personal relationship between pastor and person rather than by doling out theological or ethical formulas for particular problems pastoral care should denote the relationship of the pastor to his people in all activities not merely in dealing with persons in crises a history of pastoral care is a history of the christian church in action but if any sense is to be made of the centuries of christian work and effort not only the practicalities of making the message of the gospel a reality on earth but also the ideas which have shaped the attempt century by century must be examined this is the history of 2000 years of thought and practice in christian pastoral ministry until comparatively late in that story the bulk of the formative thinking took place in the middle east and in europe and this forms the background for recent developments in understanding human nature and the ways in which that understanding has influenced our thinking in pastoral care subjects covered range from the biblical foundations to the sects and new religious movements from the fathers the monks the friars the templars to the changes at the end of the twentieth century addresses the critique that pastoral care is indistinguishable from secular psychotherapy by placing a person s relationship to god at the center of pastoral care an expert in the field of pastoral care john patton demonstrates that pastoral care is a ministry of the church he focuses on the community of faith as an authorizer and source of care and upon the relationship between the pastor and a caring community patton identifies and compares three paradigms of pastoral care the classical the clinical pastoral and the communal contextual this third paradigm emphasizes the caring community and the various contexts for care rather than focusing on pastoral care as the work of the ordained pastor
