in this work janet clare maintains that to understand dramatic and theatrical censorship in the renaissance we need to map its terrain not its serial changes and examine the language through which it was articulated in tracing the development of dramatic censorship from its origins in the suppression of the medieval religious drama to the end of the jacobean period she shows how the system of censorship which operated under elizabeth i and james i was dynamic unstable and unpredictable the author questions notions which regard censorship as either consistently repressive or as irregular and negotiable arguing that it was governed by the contingencies of the historical moment examines the wide ranging influence of games and play on the development of modern art in the twentieth century provided by publisher in this lively and groundbreaking book arts educator marit dewhurst examines why art is an effective way to engage students in thinking about the role they might play in addressing social injustice based on interviews and observations of sixteen high schoolers participating in an activist arts class at a new york city museum dewhurst identifies three learning processes common to the act of creating art that have an impact on social justice connecting questioning and translating noting that one of the challenges of social justice art education has been the difficulty of naming effective strategies that can be used across multiple contexts dewhurst outlines core strategies for an activist arts pedagogy and offers concrete suggestions for educators seeking to incorporate activist art projects inside or outside formal school settings social justice art seeks to give common language to educators and others who are looking to expand and refine their practices in an emerging field whether they work in art education social justice programming or youth development a landmark anthology on british art history bringing together overlooked and marginalized perspectives from the critical decade what is black art this vital anthology gives voice to a generation of artists of african asian and caribbean heritage who worked within and against british art institutions in the 1980s including sonia boyce lubaina himid eddie chambers and rasheed araeen it brings together artists statements interviews exhibition catalogue essays and reviews most of which have been unavailable for many years and resonate profoundly today together they interrogate the term black art itself and revive a forgotten dialogue from a time when men and women who had been marginalized made themselves heard within the art world and beyond the kwoma the subject of this book are one of a number of peoples in the sepik river region of northern papua new guinea who have created some of the most distinctive visual art in the pacific through case studies of their painting sculpture architecture and ritual this book examines in detail how people in this society understand their art as a cultural phenomenon this includes how they understand its origins in the spirit world how they judge quality in art and how they understand artistic creativity the book contrasts kwoma beliefs with the radically different approach to art found in the modern west the modern western concept of art first emerged not in the eighteenth century in the enlightenment or even later as anthropologists and art historians often assume but several centuries earlier in the renaissance the book gives an account of radical changes that took place culturally in europe between the twelfth and sixteenth centuries in the way human intellectual creativity was understood and how this gave rise to a new concept of art one that remains unchanged in the modern west today
