science and catholicism in argentina 1750 1960 is the first comprehensive study on the relationship between science and religion in a spanish speaking country with a catholic majority and a latin pattern of secularisation the text takes the reader from jesuit missionary science in colonial times through the conflict ridden 19th century to the catholic revival of the 1930s in argentina the diverse interactions between science and religion revealed in this analysis can be organised in terms of their dynamic of secularisation the indissoluble identification of science and the secular which operated at rhetorical and institutional levels among the liberal elite and the socialists in the 19th century lost part of its force with the emergence of catholic scientists in the course of the 20th century in agreement with current views that deny science the role as the driving force of secularisation this historical study concludes that it was the process of secularisation that shaped the interplay between religion and science not the other way around this book redefines teacher in service education as being less about participation in a program and more about the opportunity for teachers to experience a process of learning that is personally meaningful and contextually relevant to their own teaching practice the research presented here reveals that teachers have the capacity to think and work differently yet are rarely provided with opportunities to exercise active decision making about their personal learning needs creating and implementing such an approach involves reimagining all aspects of the learning experience so that teachers are free to articulate their own learning needs and actively work to determine what matters most for their professional practice the book breaks new ground by drawing from research related to an in service program where teachers their experience and professional thinking were deliberately positioned at the centre of the learning experience using this evidenced based approach it focuses not only on the learning achieved but also the conditions that enabled teachers to undertake such learning this collection of essays aims to further the understanding of historical and contemporary geographies of science it offers a fresh perspective on comparative approaches to scientific knowledge and practice as pursued by geographers sociologists anthropologists and historians of science the authors explore the formation and changing geographies of scientific centers from the sixteenth to the twentieth centuries and critically discuss the designing of knowledge spaces in early museums in modern laboratories at world fairs and in the periphery of contemporary science they also analyze the interactions between science and the public in victorian britain interwar germany and recent environmental policy debates the book provides a genuine geographical perspective on the production and dissemination of knowledge and will thus be an important point of reference for those interested in the spatial relations of science and associated fields the klaus tschira foundation supports diverse symposia the essence of which is published in this springer series kts villa bosch de
