by and large architectural historians use texts drawings and photographs to craft their narratives oral testimony from those who actually occupy or construct buildings is rarely taken as seriously speaking of buildings offers a rebuttal theorizing the radical potential of a methodology that has historically been cast as unreliable essays by an international group of scholars look at varied topics from the role of gossip in undermining masculine narratives in architecture to workers accounts of building with cement in midcentury london to a sound art piece created by oral testimonies from los angeles public housing residents in sum the authors call for a renewed form of listening to enrich our understanding of what buildings are what they do and what they mean to people the architecture of persistence argues that continued human use is the ultimate measure of sustainability in architecture and that expanding the discourse about adaptability to include continuity as well as change offers the architectural manifestation of resilience why do some buildings last for generations as beloved and useful places while others do not how can designers today create buildings that remain useful into the future while architects and theorists have offered a wide range of ideas about building for change this book focuses on persistent architecture the material spatial and cultural processes that give rise to long lived buildings organized in three parts this book examines material longevity in the face of constant physical and cultural change connects the dimensions of human use and contemporary program and discusses how time informs the design process featuring dozens of interviews with people who design and use buildings and a close analysis of over a hundred historic and contemporary projects the principles of persistent architecture introduced here address urgent challenges for contemporary practice while pointing towards a more sustainable built environment in the future the architecture of persistence designing for future use offers practitioners students and scholars a set of principles and illustrative precedents exploring architecture's unique ability to connect an instructive past a useful present and an unknown future what is land and how is it made in this path breaking study of sites in western eastern and southern india nikita sud argues that land is not simply the solid surface of the earth it is best understood as a materially and conceptually dynamic realm intimately tied to the social as such land transitions across porous registers of territory property authority the sacred history and memory and contested access and exclusion while states markets and politics in post liberalization india try to make land suitable for growth and development the relationship between the soil and institutions is never straightforward a state attempting to order a layered topography is frequently stretched into shadowy domains of informality and unsanctioned practices a market may be advanced but remains precariously embedded in sociality politics could challenge the land making of the state and markets it may also effect compromises attempts at constructing a durable landed order thus reveal our own dis orders in attempting to make the land sud's intriguing study shows how the land simultaneously makes us
