presents the report of a task force that conducted a review of the first part of the Canada Labour Code, the law governing collective bargaining for private sector employers and unions within federal jurisdiction. The task force mandate was to identify options and where appropriate make recommendations for legislative change with a view to improving collective bargaining and reducing conflict, facilitating labour management co-operation, ensuring effective and efficient administration of the code, and addressing the changing workplace and employment relationship. Task force work included public consultations, receipt of written submissions, informal meetings with interested groups, and academic round tables. Section i of the report introduces the review, the legal framework of federal labour legislation, the new labour relations environment, and considerations for reform. Section ii covers issues related to the labour relations process, including the scope of collective bargaining, representation, processes, rights, and obligations during a strike or lockout, and essential services. Section iii covers code administration issues, including the powers and structure of the Canada Labour Relations Board, mediation and conciliation services, and the arbitration process. The final section discusses wider labour relations options available that go beyond part i of the code.
