pauline studies are in a conundrum the reformation perspectives championed by great men like martin luther and john calvin have been challenged recently by the rise of the new perspective on paul the main point of contention seems to be the place of biblical law in salvation while the reformation perspectives based in part on paul's apparent attacks on law assert that salvation is a free gift unmerited by human works the new perspective suggests the law is an integral part of the work of salvation it holds that paul's attacks on the law were focused only on specific aspects of law the so called boundary markers this book while having points of contact with both outlooks takes a different view on paul and the law building the atoning work of the lord jesus christ on the cross stands as the very epicenter of christianity the very heart of the gospel because of this one does not stray far from the heart of the christian faith when he asks for whom has christ accomplished so great a salvation answers to that question have historically fallen in two broad categories either jesus died for all people without exception or he died only for those whom the father has chosen to save recently a mediating view has arisen arguing that we should not choose between these options but that jesus died with multiple intentions for all without exception and for the elect alone in this book michael riccardi offers a critical evaluation of the multiple intentions view from the perspective of classic particularism the book demonstrates that while the third way proposed is attractive at first blush beneath the surface it faces insurmountable biblical and theological problems including the redefinition of the nature of the atonement itself riccardi demonstrates that particular redemption is the teaching of the text of scripture against the objections of one of its strongest opponents
