this consultation seeks views on proposals to simplify the bereavement benefits payment system by moving to a uniform payment structure for all recipients with support focused on the period immediately following bereavement simplify the contribution conditions by basing full payment on a single year of national insurance contributions and rename the benefit so that the benefit name reflects the function of the payment payments made under the war pensions scheme or armed forces compensation scheme will not be affected nor will it impact those already in receipt of bereavement benefits at the point at which a new scheme is introduced bereavement benefits have been through a series of reforms since state protection for widows was initially introduced as part of the widows orphans and old age contributory pension act of 1925 the incremental nature of this change has blurred the principles behind the benefits and their function this has resulted in a complicated payment and contribution system which at its worst can harm people's long term job prospects by distancing recipients from the labour market although some elements of the system are highly regarded clearly more can be done to ensure that bereavement benefits better serve their purpose the complicated payment system and eligibility conditions make it difficult for people to understand what they are entitled to receive the ongoing nature of payments under widowed parent's allowance which can continue for up to 20 years in extreme cases without any encouragement to maintain contact with the labour market risks creating welfare dependency joseph schumpeter oscillated in his view about the type of economic system that was most conducive to growth in his 1911 treatise schumpeter argued that a more decentralized and turbulent industry structure where the process of creative destruction was triggered by vigorous entrepreneurial activity was the engine of economic growth but by 1942 schumpeter had modified his theory arguing instead that a more centralized and stable industry structure was more conducive to growth according to schumpeter 1942 p 132 under the managed economy there was little room for entrepreneurship because innovation itself is being reduced to routine technological progress is increasingly becoming the business of teams of trained specialists who turn out what is required to make it work in predictable ways p 132 schumpeter 1942 reversed his earlier view by arguing that the integration of knowledge creation and appropriation bestowed an inherent innovative advantage upon giant corporations since capitalist enterprise by its very achievements tends to automate progress we conclude that it tends to make itself superfluous to break to pieces under the pressure of its own success
