we are told again and again that the world has become increasingly complex and indecipherable however this book reminds us that we are no longer alone in the world that it is time to move away from the mental categories of the cold war and stop treating all those who challenge our vision of the international order as guilty deviants or barbarians the author challenges the diplomacy of western states who want to continue to rule the world against history and in particular that of france which too often oscillates between arrogance indecision and ambiguity the power play is stuck the international order can no longer be regulated by a small club of oligarchs who exclude the weaker ones ignore the demands of societies and ignore the demands for justice that emerge from a new world where the actors are more numerous more diverse and more restive to arbitrary disciplines for this reason this book also offers ways to think an international order that would be if not fair at least less unfair

this volume considers the exchange between the neo kantian tradition in german philosophy and the sciences from the last third of the nineteenth century to the great war and partly beyond during this period various scientific disciplines underwent modernisation processes characterised by an increasing empirical inclination and a decline in the influence of metaphysics the pluralisation of theories and the historical and pragmatic revitalisation of scientific claims against philosophy the various contributions look at the ways in which a certain kantian orthodoxy was influenced by these new developments and whether and how itself had some impact on the development of the sciences the volume is not limited to the exact sciences of mathematics and physics which are particularly important for the kantian tradition but also takes into account less recognised disciplines such as biology chemistry technology and psychology it is complemented by contributions that contrast neo kantianism with other scientific philosophies of the period in question
