religion is increasingly visible in the contemporary world as a complex phenomenon requiring multidisciplinary research to do justice to the complexity multidisciplinary research is however though lauded by many notoriously difficult to bring to fruition this volume takes on the challenge to bridge the gap contributions formulate the challenges many have faced but few yet analysed and put into the hands of researchers concrete tools with which to set about designing and executing multidisciplinary research on religions beliefs and religious behaviour in an era where research funding increasingly expects interdisciplinary collaboration it provides guidance on constructive pathways and pitfalls to avoid contributors are riho altnurme anders bäckström lori g beaman karin borevi leon van den broeke valerie demarinis victoria enkivist jonny långstedt annette leis peters anna sara lind martha middlemiss lé mon cecilia nahnfeldt per erik nilsson peter nynäs margit warburg and anne laure zwingling this comprehensive volume focuses on the world s religions and the changes they have undergone as they become more global and diverse in form it explores the religions of the world not only in the regions with which they have been historically associated but also looks at the new cultural and religious contexts in which they are developing it considers the role of migration in the spread of religions by examining the issues raised for modern societies by the increasing interaction of different religions the volume also addresses such central questions as the dynamics of religious innovation which is evidenced in the rise and impact of new religious and new spirituality movements in every continent this book offers a survey of the development of interdisciplinarity in religious studies within academia and offers ways for it to continue to progress in contemporary universities it examines the use of the term interdisciplinary in the context of the academic study of religion and how it shapes the way scholarly work in this field has developed the text uses two main elements to discuss religious studies as a field firstly it looks at the history of the development of religious studies in academia as seen through an interdisciplinary critique of the university as an epistemological project it then uses the same interdisciplinary critique to develop a foundation for a 21st century hermeneutic one which uses the classical concepts reprised by that interdisciplinary critique and retools the field for the 21st century setting out both the objects of religious studies as a subject and the techniques used to employ the study of those objects this book offers an invaluable perspective on the progress of the field it will therefore be of great use to scholars of research methods within religious studies most ontario universities were established by christian denominations a christian ethos was assumed and pervasive and students were required to take courses designed to teach and inculcate religion this insightful and comprehensive study demonstrates how as ontario society became secularized and pluralistic so too did universities today religion is again studies in university classrooms but as religious studies a relatively new field that reflects the religiously pluralistic nature of ontario and the world wide explosion of knowledge this authoritative volume will be of interest to students of religion in and outside academic circles to administrators of academic institutions and granting agencies and to persons wanting to know more about the social and cultural changes that have transformed ontario and canadian society this book opens a new interdisciplinary frontier between religion and theatre studies to illuminate what has been seen as the religious or spiritual nature of polish theatre director jerzy grotowski's work it corrects the lacunae in both theatre studies and religious studies by examining the interaction between the two fields in his artistic output the central argument of the text is that through an embodied and materialist approach to religion developed in the work of michel foucault and religious studies scholar manuel vasquez as well as a critical reading of the concepts of the new age a new understanding of grotowski and religion can be developed it is possible to show how grotowski's work articulated spiritual experience within the body achieving a removal of spirituality from ecclesial authorities and relocating spiritual experience within the body of the performer this is a unique analysis of one of the 20th century's most famous theatrical figures as such it is a vital reference for academics in both religion and theatre studies that have an interest in the spiritual aspects of grotowski's work this first volume on the state of the art in religious studies in canada offers a description and critique of the field in the colleges universities and secondary schools in alberta among the findings philosophical theological and textual approaches to the study of religion predominate to the relative neglect of methodologies employed in fields such as sociology and anthropology the quality and quantity of published research is significant but focusses on christian studies some interdisciplinary study is being carried on and benefits religious studies as well as other fields religious studies scholars in alberta have a relatively high public profile but their exercise of public responsibility is time consuming and can jeopardize career advancement in view of wide spread religious illiteracy among students descriptive courses must not be neglected in favour of analytical ones an appendix listing courses offered in the schools surveyed concludes the volume a powerful new exploration of the sacred from many distinguished theologians that speaks to a postsecular context and its challenges this volume positions itself on the cutting edge of two fields in psychology that enjoy rapidly increasing attention both the study of human lives and some core domains of such lives as religion and spirituality are high on the agenda of current research and teaching biographies and autobiographies are being approached in new ways and have become central to the study of human lives as an object of research and a preferred method for obtaining unique data about subjective human experiences ever since the beginning of the psychology of religion autobiographies have also been pointed out as an important source of information about psychic processes involved in religiosity in this volume a number of leading theoreticians and researchers from europe and the usa try to bring them back to this field by drawing on new insights and latest developments in psychological theory this new companion to william james the varieties of religious experience offers contemporary responses to james's seminal book from key international experts
