stimulated by laudatory efforts to understand the high rate of psychiatric casualties among world war ii veterans and to provide treatment for them psychiatry grew quickly during the postwar years considerably influenced by the immigration of many central european psychoanalysts gradually however psychiatry began to weaken its ties to medicine and lost much of its public respect by the 1970s postwar optimism had been replaced by widespread concern that psychiatric practice was being dominated by unsubstantiated formulations rather than reliable evidence psychiatry was dramatically impacted by enormous pressure for therapeutic accountability exerted by a managed care reimbursement system the profession recognized the need for a new direction and resolved to change in the foreword to the book current apa medical director james h scully jr m d notes that dr sabshin has woven a personal journey of the history of the intellectual conflicts and changes in the field of psychiatry in the post war era culminating in the remedicalization of psychiatry and the development of the dsm iii dr sabshin encourages psychiatric professionals to change the field so it can employ an empirically based bio psycho social model that has the potential to revitalize the next phase of american psychiatry he details how the potential for the future of psychiatry can be enhanced by today s practicing professionals stressing the need to incorporate the rapid developments of neuroscience into a professional practice that is increasingly integrated with empirically demonstrated psychological and social influences upon mental illness importance on continued research that is fed back into practice and keeps the professional evidence based need of psychoanalysis to make its beliefs explicit formulating hypotheses that can be tested scientifically in order to be employed reliably in evidence based practice this well crafted historical account describes how the profession has become a more respected and accountable part of medicine and how its scientific credentials have risen as a result dr sabshin concludes that the use of psychological understanding and psychotherapies must play a major role combined with psychopharmacology in the treatment of psychiatric patients feminist concern with difference has rarely extended to rurality even if it is now widely recognized that experiences of inequality depend on intersections of several identities in each individual life this lack of concern may reflect the urban background of the majority of feminist academics or at least their urban positionality once in the academy it may equivalently be that feminists have been influenced by stereotypes of rural women as traditional and reactionary and thus seen them as unlikely exponents of gender equality and an unfruitful focus for scholarly energies perhaps the problem is a broader one that is reflective of the much documented but still apparent unwillingness of many feminists to recognize and address difference in any of its manifestations regardless even with the recent interest in intersectionality which has necessarily renewed and reenergized debates in feminism about diversity and inclusion the question of how women are differently positioned because of their non metropolitan location has remained largely overlooked
